100 TECHNICIANS ATTEND HALCYON U

One Hundred of Hawaii's finest air conditioning technicians have completed our Fujitsu Halcyon University course held at Admor HVAC. These one day classes are designed to provide "hands on" diagnosis and service training for the Fujitsu brand of ductless split system air conditioners. Unlike most training in Hawaii, these classes included actual operating Fujitsu units that were installed in a classroom built by Admor HVAC. Following each course, students were tested to check comprehension and retention of the course materials.

"With the advancement of technology and the introduction of the Inverter Compressor, it was important that we establish a local training center for our customers" stated Tim Young, P.E. from Fujitsu. "Admor HVAC has invested time and money to ensure that Fujitsu dealers have the opportunity to receive the finest training in the country without leaving the Islands. In the past, contractors would have to fly to the mainland to receive this type of training" Young added.

Technicians from Oahu, Maui, Kauai and the Big Island as well as techs from the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines have all attended Halcyon U. The classes will continue in July and August. More training dates will be released later. Call Admor HVAC for details on upcoming training events.

Fujitsu Service Training is limited to 8 students per class.
